

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Customers expect the best!

Learning Outcome

Describe the reasons or results of events or actions in spoken or written texts, in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Are you a loyal customer to a specific company? Why? Why not?
- Have you ever given a company or restaurant a second chance after they made a mistake? Explain.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about customer relations.
- I can talk about events that have happened in the past or events that might have happened.
- I can talk about the purpose of an action or an event.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa and Jim finally figure out what to do.

* "To figure out" means to solve or find a solution.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Vanessa: Hi Jim, what took so long?

Jim: I had to cross hell's half acre to get those hoses. There's only one supplier that carries them. You appear to have managed pretty well without a fridge. To have pulled that off is impressive.

Vanessa: I wish I could say that it had been. Lots of the customers seem to have gone elsewhere. Some left for the sake of trying the new restaurant down the street.

Jim: That's unfortunate.

Vanessa: Are those hoses going to be easy enough to install? The fridge needs to be up and running by tomorrow morning for receiving our usual deliveries. If we lose any more customers, I'll expect to have been fired by the end of next week.

Jim: Oh dear. There are more issues than I thought. I'll need another half day.

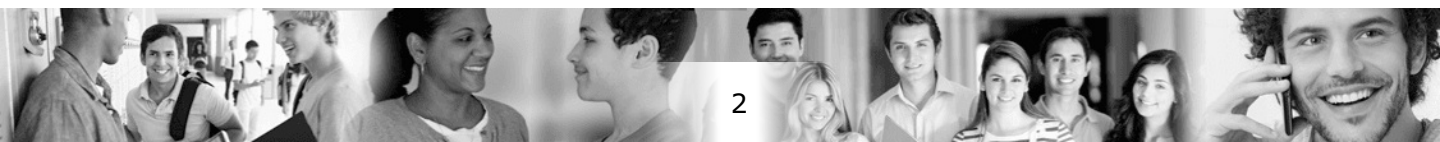

Vanessa: Can you work tonight?

Jim: No can do. I was expected to have been home by now. It's 11:30pm? You expect me to have it fixed by the morning?

Vanessa: I have had way too many mishaps and customer complaints. Even some of our loyal customers have abandoned us. It makes me look as though I'm incompetent. What can we do to get back in business?

Jim: First we could go home to sleep, and second we could cut your losses and get you another fridge. This one won't be running forever and some of the parts are next to impossible to get! I can have one in at 8 am. You have my word!

Vanessa: If getting a new fridge is what it's going to take for this restaurant to run smoothly, then we'd better do it. Bill will need to be forewarned, though. Fine. Let's call it a day.

Let's Practice!

There seems to be a solution to Vanessa's fridge problem ...

Instructions: Use the words from the Word Bank to complete the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Word Bank

back / word / expected / pulled / order / losses / though

1. To have _____ that off is impressive.
2. No can do. I was _____ to have been home by now.
3. In _____ to fix them, I'll need another half day.
4. What can we do to get _____ in business?
5. We could cut your _____ and get you another fridge.
6. I can have one in at 8 am. You have my _____!
7. Bill will need to be forewarned, _____.

Let's Practice!

Things seem to have evolved pretty well!

Instructions: Unscramble the words in order to find the mystery sentence. Rewrite the sentences correctly. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

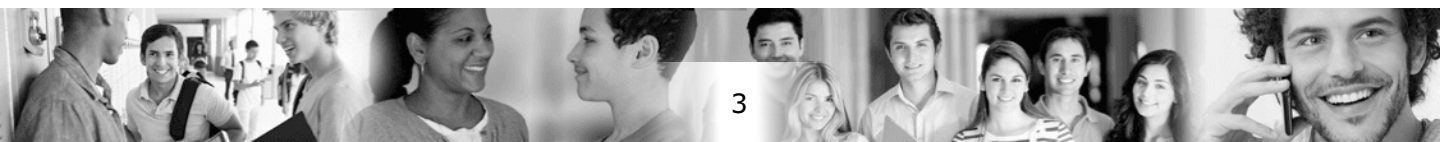

1. pretty well / without a fridge. / to have / You appear / managed

2. elsewhere. / customers / Lots of / seem to / have gone

3. the end / expect / I'll / to have / the week. / fired by / of / been

4. expected / been / I was / to have / home / by now.

5. have it / You expect / me to / by the morning? / fixed

Extension Activity

Think about your expectations for a model boss and a model employee.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Discuss your expectations for a model boss and model employee with a friend.
- Write down a list of expectations for each.
- Share your list with a third person.
- Discuss how realistic you think your expectations are.
- Go online to see if there are any other expectations you did not include or if your list matches up with the list you found.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I talk about expectations.

☐ ☐

I write a list of expectations.

☐ ☐

I share the list with another person.

☐ ☐

I discuss how realistic those expectations are.

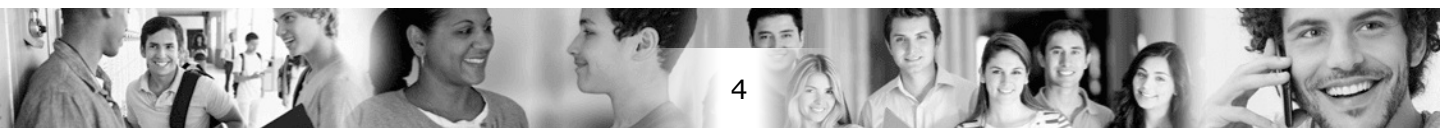

☐ ☐

I check online to see if there are any other expectations for bosses and employees.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to pull something off (verb): to achieve or win something difficult and unexpected e.g. To have pulled that off is impressive.
- supplier (noun): source for goods or services
e.g. There's only one supplier that carries them.
- No can do. (expression): I am unable to do it.
e.g. No can do. I was expected to have been home by now.
- loyal (adjective): supportive; loyal, devoted e.g. Even some of our loyal customers have abandoned us.
- to get back in business (expression): resume normal operation e.g. What can we do to get back in business?
- to cut your losses (expression): to abandon a course of action that is going to be unsuccessful e.g. Second, we could cut your losses and get you another fridge.
- to have someone's word (expression): to be given a promise
e.g. You have my word!
- to forewarn (verb): to inform someone ahead of time
e.g. Bill will need to be forewarned, though.
- to call it a day (expression): to stop working and go home
e.g. Let's call it a day.

Learning Points

Perfect Infinitives in Non-finite Clauses

The Perfect Infinitive can refer to an action that was completed, or that was expected to be completed at some point in the past.

You use the Perfect Infinitive to talk about past actions with verbs like expect, pretend, prefer, seem or hope.

Example:

She expected to have contacted everyone by the end of the evening.

I would have preferred to have eaten earlier.

You use the Perfect Infinitive with non-finite clauses to refer to events that have happened in the past, or events that should or might have happened but did not happen in the end. A non-finite clause is introduced by a verb with no subject.

Example: To have pulled that off is impressive.

Examples:

- Lots of the customers seem to have gone elsewhere.
- You expect me to have fixed it by the morning?

Learning Points

Expressing Purpose Using for

You use purpose clauses to express the reasons for an action, or the intended motive of a specific situation.

You use words like to, in order to, so as to or for + -ing to introduce a purpose clause.

Purpose clauses are subordinate to the main clause. The order of the clauses can be interchangeable, as long as the relationship between the two remains clear.

Example:

I have come up with a new plan in order to stay focused.

In order to stay focused, I have come up with a new plan.*

You use to with an infinitive as a way to express purpose. We refer to this structure as an Infinitive of purpose.

Example: I called to find out if the order had been shipped.

He called to check on the schedule for reopening the restaurant.

You use in order to or so as to to emphasize an intention or a necessity.

Example:

I would like to call for a meeting in order to / so as to address the current issues in the restaurant.

You use in order that or so that when the second clause starts with a pronoun or a noun.

Example:

You need to give me an answer, so that / in order that I can address the problem quickly.

You also use for + verb -ing to express purpose and intended use.

Example:

These boots are made for walking.

This area isn't large enough for seating 20 people.

Examples:

- The fridge needs to be up and running by tomorrow morning for receiving our usual deliveries.
- First we could go home to sleep, and second we could cut your losses and get you another fridge.

