

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

We need to solve this problem.

Learning Outcome

Describe emotions and feelings in present and past situations in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about customer relations.
- I can express annoyance and strong disapproval.
- I can talk about what will have happened.

Ask your partner:

- What are your duties at school, at home or at work?
- Do you think you have too much responsibility or could you handle a little more?

Let's Explore!

Vanessa tries to make things run smoothly.

* To make things "run smoothly" means to ensure things go well.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Vanessa: I'm glad you're all present for this meeting. I hope to have wrapped up the agenda by ten o'clock. If you won't be here, you'll have to talk with me later. It won't do us any good if we're not on the same page. On a positive note, I'd like to say that I know you've really been pulling together to try to make things run more smoothly. You're getting better with non-verbal communication ... smiling more, most of you. The one thing I want to reiterate is that I prefer the fridges to have been checked both morning and night for supplies. To have known the fridge was broken first thing in the morning would have averted the disaster that ensued today. Tomorrow we'll be closed for lunch as I hope to resolve our fridge problem. Jim won't work with the staff here, so I've told him to come tomorrow. I expect all of you to have come in for four o'clock to prepare dinner. Concerning customer relations, you've all been working hard. I would prefer not to have run out of mussels, but stuff happens! So you have the morning off tomorrow. I hope you get some R and R. Unless there are questions, you can go. Umm, Rachel, I'd like to have a word with you.

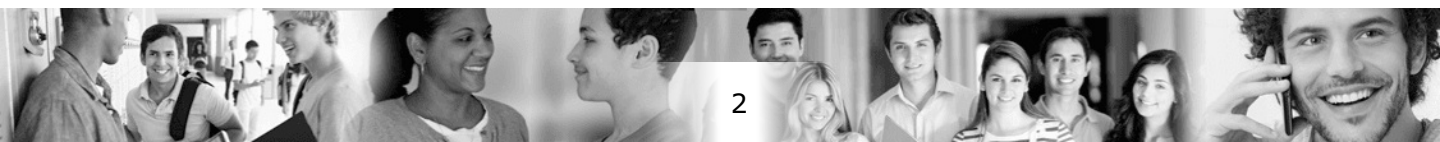

Rachel: Yeah.

Vanessa: Listen Rachel, I don't want to make any presumptions, but I feel like something's going on with you. Are you okay?

Rachel: Well, I cannot stand some of the customers to be honest. I would prefer to have continued being a dishwasher or cook sometimes. I can't stand how pompous they are. A lot of them have a cultural bias towards me.

Vanessa: It's difficult dealing with customers, I agree, but if you won't pull yourself together in front of them, that's a problem. I want to support you Rachel ... but why on earth did you take your shoes and socks off in the dining room? I won't tolerate it if you do anything unprofessional in front of customers again. Do you understand why?

Rachel: I guess.

Let's Practice!

Rachel is not happy about having to handle customers.

Instructions: Read the dialogue on page 2 again and select all the correct answers.

What are the reasons why Rachel seems to be upset?

- ☐ 1. She doesn't know how to handle customers.
- ☐ 2. Rachel would rather have stayed in the kitchen than have contact with the customers.
- ☐ 3. She doesn't tolerate Vanessa.
- ☐ 4. She took her shoes off in front of the customers.
- ☐ 5. She doesn't like customers who think they are better than her.
- ☐ 6. She believes that customers have a cultural bias toward her.
- ☐ 7. She believes that Vanessa has a cultural bias toward her.

Let's Practice!

Vanessa hopes that some arrangements will have been made by the end of the week.

Instructions: Proofread the sentences. Circle the incorrect words. Rewrite the sentences correctly. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. I hope to has wrapped up the agenda by ten o'clock.

2. I prefer the fridges to have be check both morning and night for supplies.

3. I would prefer to had continue being a dishwasher or cook sometimes.

4. I expect all of you to has came in for four o'clock to prepare for dinner.

Extension Activity

Write a memo to improve customer relations.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Think of five errors service people make when they deal with customers.
- Write a memo (150 words minimum) to a restaurant staff highlighting the mistakes they've made and say how they can improve their customer service. (use prefer, hope, expect)
- Read your memo aloud to friends and get them to give you feedback on how clear your ideas and suggestions are.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write a memo to employees about problems with customer service.

☐ ☐

I read my memo aloud.

☐ ☐

I listen to feedback from friends.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- customer relations (noun): the process and manner in which a business develops, establishes and maintains relationships with its customers
e.g. Concerning customer relations, you've all been working hard.
- non-verbal communication (noun): communication without the use of spoken language e.g. You're getting better with non-verbal communication ... smiling more, most of you.
- R and R (expression): rest and relaxation
e.g. So you have the morning off tomorrow so I hope you get some R and R.
- to have a word with someone (expression): to speak privately e.g. Rachel, I'd like to have a word with you.
- presumptions (noun): acts of assuming something to be true
e.g. I don't want to make any presumptions, but I feel like something's going on with you.
- pompous (adjective): feeling or showing that you think you are better or more important than other people e.g. I can't stand how pompous the customers are.
- cultural bias (noun): the act of interpreting and judging phenomena by standards inherent to one's own culture e.g. A lot of them have a cultural bias towards me.
- Why on earth ... ? (expression): used to show surprise or shock when asking "why"
e.g. Why on earth did you take your shoes and socks off in the dining room?

Learning Points

Will and Won't in the if clause to Express Refusal or Strong Disapproval

You use the first conditional to talk about possibilities in the present or future - things which might happen.

You use the if clause with Will and Won't to express refusal or disapproval.

A first conditional sentence consists of two clauses, an if clause and a main clause:

If you won't be here for your team, then we'll have a big problem.

= The possibility of not being here will be met with strong disapproval.

He won't explain anything if you don't calm down.

= He refuses to explain until you are calm.

Look at the chart for examples of refusal and disapproval:

Use	Example
Refusal	I won't tolerate it if you do anything unprofessional in front of customers again. Jim won't work with the staff here. Christopher won't come in before 10 a.m.
Disapproval	If you won't pull yourself together in front of them, it will show them a bad example. If you won't be here, you'll have to talk with me later. If you won't follow the rules, I'll have to let you go.

Learning Points

Perfect Infinitives to Talk About Future Action

You use the Perfect Infinitive to talk about an action that will be completed at a point in the future.

The Perfect Infinitive can refer to an action that will be completed, or that is expected to be completed at some point in the future.

You use the Perfect Infinitive to talk about future actions with verbs like expect, pretend, prefer, or hope.

Structure:

verb + to have + past participle.

Example:

I hope to have wrapped up the agenda by 10.

Examples:

- I prefer the fridges to have been checked both morning and night for supplies.
- I expect all of you to have come in for four o'clock to prepare dinner.

