

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

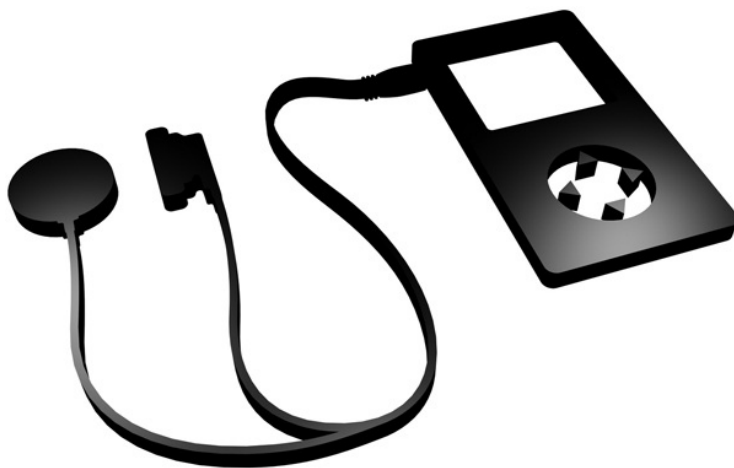

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Don't complain about me!

Learning Outcome

Exchange information about unlikely events or fairly certain conditions that will be fulfilled in present, past or future in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about customer relations.
- I can talk about what happens in general or what happens in a specific situation using if and when.
- I can express purpose and intention.

Ask your partner:

- How do you react when someone complains about your work?
- What do you do if someone complains about something that you are not responsible for?

Let's Explore!

Peter, Vanessa and Amy talk about a customer with issues.

* "Issues" are problems that are on your mind, to do with your life.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Amy: When people feel threatened, they act out. When you take a breath, your heart opens and you listen without judgement.
- Vanessa: That is so true. I know she must be traumatized by something. I don't want to have to fire her.
- Peter: You've got to do what you've got to do. The raise is good news! Does Bill know about the letter?
- Vanessa: Not yet. When someone lies outright like that, it gets my back up. I mean there is no way I would ever serve anybody raw chicken. When I see him again, I will not be able to keep my mouth shut! I have half a mind to call him out.
- Peter: For the sake of your own well-being, I think you will have to keep a lid on it.
- Vanessa: I know you're right. I have no real intention of saying anything, but it hurts to be lied about.
- Peter: The customer is always right! When someone has their heart set on something, they cannot be stopped!
- Amy: Umm sorry what do you mean, Pete?
- Peter: I think that the customer complained with the aim of hurting someone. He was frustrated with his own issues, even though, yes, of course when you order something and the restaurant runs out of it, it's frustrating, but he must have anger issues.
- Vanessa: I wholeheartedly agree, but RAW chicken? He says he'll come to the restaurant to see me in person when he's in town next week.
- Amy: I know you offer great service at your restaurant, besides the incident with Rachel. If you want to provide the best service, you'll probably have to tell Rachel to get some help and take a break at least. You can't be held accountable for someone else's mental health issues in the workplace. You've also had a lot of repeat business. I think everything is going to be just fine.

Let's Practice!

What you are going to say needs to be thought out carefully.

Instructions: Write the correct words from the Word Bank to correctly complete the sentences.

Word Bank

with the aim of / For the sake of / to get some help
/ of saying anything / to call him out

1. I have half a mind _____.
2. _____ your own well-being, control it.
3. I have no real intention _____.
4. The customer complained _____ hurting someone.
5. Tell Rachel _____ and take a break at least.

Let's Practice!

If people are exposed to negative situations, they tend to break down!

Instructions: Match the sentences on the left with their missing parts on the right.

COLUMN A

1. When you take a breath,
2. When I see him again,
3. When someone has their heart set on something,
4. When you order something and the restaurant runs out of it,
5. If you want to provide the best service,

COLUMN B

- a. they cannot be stopped!
- b. you start by finding out what people want.
- c. it's frustrating.
- d. I will not be able to keep my mouth shut!
- e. your heart opens and you listen without judgement.

Extension Activity

Let's come to a solution!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Find 2 partners to have a group of 3.
- You and your friend are at a restaurant and the waiter (your partner) brought you the wrong order, spilled soda on you and you found a hair in your soup.
- Discuss with your friend whether or not to tell the manager about it.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I talk about customer relations.

☐ ☐

I express my intentions in dealing with customers.

☐ ☐

I speak about possibilities.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to act out (verb): to behave in an angry way
e.g. When people feel threatened they act out.
- outright (adverb): obviously
e.g. When someone lies outright like that, it gets my back up.
- to get one's back up (expression): to make someone angry; become upset
e.g. When someone lies outright like that, it gets my back up.
- for the sake of (expression): out of consideration for e.g. For the sake of your own well-being, I think you will have to keep a lid on it.
- to keep a lid on it (expression): to be quiet about something or to keep a situation under control
e.g. For the sake of your own well-being, I think you will have to keep a lid on it.
- to have one's heart set on something (expression): to want something badly e.g. When someone has their heart set on something, they cannot be stopped!
- to be held accountable (expression): to be responsible for e.g. You can't be held accountable for someone else's mental health issues in the workplace.
- repeat business (noun): regular business from the same customers
e.g. You've also had a lot of repeat business.

Learning Points

First vs. Zero Conditional

The Zero Conditional is used to talk about things that are always true. These can be facts, or things you generally do in a given situation.

You use the First Conditional with if clauses when you consider what you might possibly do in the future under a certain condition.

The Zero Conditional, also called the Present Real Conditional uses the following structure:

If/when ... Simple Present, ... Simple Present

or

Simple Present ... if/when ... Simple Present.

Both if and when are used in the Present Real Conditional. Using if suggests that something happens less frequently. Using when suggests that it is fairly certain the condition will be fulfilled.

You use the First Conditional to say it's possible that you will or will not do something. In that condition, something else may, may not, will, or will not happen. The outcome is not in the present, but in the future.

Structure:

If + Present Simple ... will + verb ...

or

will + verb + if + Present Simple

If people overeat, they become overweight.

If it rains on Saturday, I will stay home and watch a movie.

Examples:

- When people feel threatened they act out.
- When you take a breath, your heart opens and you listen without judgement.
- When you order something and the restaurant runs out of it, it's frustrating.
- If you want to provide the best service, you start by finding out what customers want.

Learning Points

Expressing Purpose and Intention

Besides using linking clauses to express your purpose, you can use certain nouns or verbal phrases to state your intentions.

When you want to express purpose and intention, the following phrases and expressions can be used.

- Nouns/Verbal phrases

To have + high hopes of / no intention of / no thoughts of / half a mind to ...

To be + / toying with the idea ...

- Prepositional phrases

+ in the hopes of getting / + with a view to getting / + with the aim of getting ...

Examples:

- I have no real intention of saying anything.
- I think that the customer complained with the aim of hurting someone.
- I have half a mind to call him out.

