

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Having a disappointing meal is not what we expected!

Learning Outcome

Exchange information about unlikely events or fairly certain conditions that will be fulfilled in present, past or future in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about customer relations.
- I can discuss what might have happened.
- I can express willingness to do something.

Ask your partner:

- What is the worst customer service you have ever had?
- What are the qualities of having a good attitude and a bad attitude?

Let's Explore!

Another problem arises in Vanessa's kitchen.

* To "arise" means to come up or originate.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

In the kitchen:

Vanessa: We've had 10 orders of the fresh mussels, Rachel. Will you go into the main fridge and see how many there are?

Rachel: Michael must have counted them already. He left a note.

Vanessa: Great but I'd like you to double-check. They might have been eaten since last night.

Rachel: If you insist!

Vanessa: Here, I'll get them out of the fridge. I need to know exactly how many there are.

Rachel: The fridge door must have been left open. It stinks! It smells putrid ... like rotten meat!

Vanessa: Oh my God! I'm going to call Michael in. I want him to get to the market right away.

Rachel: Right ... because Michael is so team-oriented!

Vanessa: Remember what I said about attitude, Rachel.

In the dining room:

Alexander: I'm afraid we are out of the "Moules du Jour". I could recommend ...

Customer: That's outrageous! We ordered them ages ago and now you tell us there aren't any? Will we have been served before noon? My clients here are hungry. Can you please recommend something? I'd like to eat as soon as possible.

Alexander: The tuna tartare is divine ... or the veal scallopini.

Customer: I would have had mussels, but I guess the tuna tartare will be fine. Ten orders at this table and more Pinot grigio please. How long will it be?

Alexander: Before I tell you, I'm going to verify that with the kitchen.

In the kitchen:

Alexander: Okay everyone, the customer on table five is going to have my head if we don't have enough tuna tartare!

Vanessa: Everything in the fridge must have gone off. I've called Michael and he's at the market. I'll text him now to get fresh tuna.

Alexander: Get them to chop it up for us! Do you think having it on the table in ten minutes is feasible?

Vanessa: Oh my God! Rachel may have lost her marbles. She's taking her shoes and socks off in front of the customers!

Alexander: I've got to see this!

Let's Practice!

Rachel is having some problems with her customer service skills.

Instructions: Circle the correct word to complete the sentence correctly.

1. Oh my God! Rachel may have lose / lost her marbles.
2. Okay everyone, the customer on table five is going to have / take my head if we don't have enough tuna tartare!
3. Remember / Remind what I said about attitude, Rachel.
4. Is there anything else I can / can't help you with?
5. Sorry for the inconvenience. Please let us double-check / single-check your bill.

Let's Practice!

Rachel's co-workers are speculating about what happened between Rachel and the client.

Instructions: Complete the sentences below by choosing from the options you are given.

Must count

might have been eaten

must go

must have gone

have been served

must have counted

may have left

must have been left

1. Michael _____ the mussels already.
2. They _____ since last night.
3. Will we _____ before noon?
4. The fridge door _____ open. It stinks!
5. Everything in the fridge _____ off.

Extension Activity

Write a dialogue about a bad meal.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Write a dialogue between a server and a customer.
- Make sure the customer complains about the food.
- Make sure the server expresses willingness to do something about it.
- Have the manager come out to speak with the disappointed customer.
- Read the dialogue aloud with two other people.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write a dialogue.

☐ ☐

I write expressing willingness to solve a problem.

☐ ☐

I practice the dialogue with two other people.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to double-check (verb): to go over something for a second time to ensure that it is accurate or safe
e.g. I'd like you to double-check because they might have been eaten since last night.
- attitude (noun): way of thinking or feeling about someone or something e.g. Remember what I said about attitude, Rachel.
- tuna tartare (noun): raw tuna seasoned and shaped into small cakes e.g. The tuna tartare is divine!
- to verify (verb): to check that something is true, accurate, or justified
e.g. I'm going to verify that with the kitchen.
- to have someone's head (expression): to punish someone severely e.g. The customer on table five is going to have my head if we don't have enough tuna tartare!
- to lose one's marbles (expression): to go insane
e.g. Rachel may have lost her marbles. She's taking her shoes and socks off in front of the customers!

Learning Points

Modals To Express Intention (Will, be going to, would, want to)

You use modals to express a willingness to do something or to talk about your plans and intentions for the future.

You use will, want to, be going to or would to talk about your plans or about something you mean to do in the future.

Example:

I'd like to eat as soon as possible.

I'm going to verify that with the kitchen.

I want Michael to get to the market right away.

You use will to express willingness about an action or situation.

Example:

Will you go into the main fridge and check for me?

Sure. I'll do that right away.

Examples:

- Will you go into the main fridge to see how many there are?
- I'm going to call Michael in. I want him to get to the market right away.

The Perfect Infinitive After Modals for Suggestion

You use the Perfect Infinitive with modal verbs to talk about hypothetical situations and to suggest possibilities.

You use the Perfect Infinitive after modals like could, might, should, or would to talk about suggestions, unreal situations, or possible outcomes.

Structure:

modal verb + have + past participle

You use the Perfect Infinitive with modals to suggest something that could have been done instead of something else.

Example:

You could have left the fridge door open to avoid this situation.

Examples:

- Michael must have counted them already.
- They might have been eaten since last night.
- I would have had mussels, but I guess the tuna tartare will be fine.
- Will we have been served before noon?

